express their belief that a final vote will be reached before adjournment to-morrow. If so, the propositions, as reported, will be sustained without amendment in the House. The New-London and League Island Navy-Yard question is expected to come up, which will give rise to a lively debate. Judge Kelley of Pennsylvania and Mr. Brandagee of Connecticut are the champions of the respective interests, and as both are able and determined men, and the question an important one, the discussion is anticipated with fively interest. The Trial of Davis.

Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune. RICHMOND, June 3, 1866. Any indications of a probable or possible trial of Jefferson Davis are at present necessarily or among the immediate counsel of the prisoner is able to intimate at what time the trial may take place. The usual authorities seek for information rather than profess to impart it. The town is quiet, and barely a rumor prevails of the Government's attention. We even hear that Mr. Davis is not to be tried at all; certainly not now, or before October or December. Except by the more presence of his counsel, the prisoner himself has repeived no official forewarning, while according to Olympic Theater to-night. Mr. George Fawcett Rowe has an act of Congress he must receive a copy of the charges and a list of the jurors before the trial can occur. The Court over which Judge Underwood presides is Stoddart; "Wegg." Mr. Rowe; "Riderbood," Mr. Studley; "Lizzie Hexham," Miss Kate Newton; "Mrs. Boffin," Miss to meet to-morrow, and such proceedings as there will take place may throw better light on the subject. There is an apprehension among the citizens that the Chief Justice will preside at the trial; but of this, Mr. Davis's own counsel confess themselves ignorant. Three of his counsel arrived here last night, viz.: Mr. James T. Brady of New-York, Mr. Wm. B. Reed of Philadelphia, and Mr. Brown of Baltimore. They were accompanied by Mr. Davis's Private Secretary, Col. Burton N. Harrison, who was capfured with him in his attempted escape. Mr. Charles

O'Conor and Mr. George Shea remain in Washington to

The Freedmen testified to the kindness and justice of their late masters. Speeches were made by Gens. Steadman, Fullerton and Tilison. For years past every attempt to produce English opera has been a comparative failure—the failures would have been positive, but for the intervention of some one lady vocalist, whose talent and popularity sufficed to give them a brief vitality. All English opera enterprises have been got up on the cheap slip-shod plan. Any chorus would do, any orchestra and any kind of scenery and appointments was good enough. The English operas were generally bold translations of the omitted rapid dialogues in place of the recitatives, and wretched singers in all but one or two of the principal roles. Then, too, there was no permanent home for the undertaking its position was that of a vagrant seeking lodgings for a night or two at such places as would take him in, so that the public even if inclined, had no time to be reconciled to undertakings which were so unpromising in their beginnings, and had no

The new enterprise at the Theatre Français, commences, apparently, under very favorable auspices. It was planned and worked out by Mr. Henry Draper, who having great faith in its success if carefully managed, induced some gentlemen of capital to join him, to secure the New French Theatre, and to engage the best artists that could be procured in the city, in order to present operas in the highest language, in a style of excellence which should meet the requirements of the present exegiant state of the public taste. Air. Draper's task was laborious and ungracious, for, warned by the past, every one was doubtful of the success of the undertaking. Vexations delays occurred in consequence of the failure to complete the new theater at the time specified, which still further tended to discredit the enterprise. But all difficulties were at length overcome, the first performance was given, and was received with the warmest approval by a crowded and fashionable

The company is well selected, the material is all good, possibly the very best that could be controlled at the time. Miss Richings is an experienced vocalist and actress, with undiminished powers. She has perfect stage command, and never allows the action to flag. Though not a perfectly trained singer, she has many of the graces of the art, singing with taste, piquancy and infinite dash and spirit. Miss Zelda Harrison, a novice in all respects possesses the most telling stage requisites, a fine voice, a handsome face, youth and good appearance; she sings sweetly and expressively, and although she does not always use her low tones in the best taste, be whole manner is attractive, and will secure her in the popular favor. Both Miss Harrison and Mrs. Mozart are the merest tyros in acting and stage business, but neither of them betray awkwardness or embarrassment, only the least bit of stiffness, which will soon wear off.

The tenor, Mr. William Castle, has exhibited far more abili-ty than we had hoped to find in him. He sings very charmingly, and throws a great deal of spirit and passion into his music. He also acts with spirit, and in a nonchelant easy man ner which is effective, and only needs a little more grace and on from Winchester to Salem, Va. This will give Balti. Polish to deserve unrestricted praise. Mr. Seguin is not gifted with a very powerful voice, but what he has is of good quality, well under control, and he sings in a style to show the man o taste and the musician. He is a judicious actor, and interpreta the part of the Doctor in good style. He also dresses and makes up well. Mr. Peakes of Roston has a good, sono-rous voice, and sings the little be has to be well. He is a capital actor, and is a thorough master of the art of "making up.

With such material, it may well be imagined that the oper-is well represented. Comparing it with any of its predeces sors, the present, as a whole, is the best working company that we have had for years, and their efforts are thoroughly enjoyable, and are certainly proving highly attractive. The plot of the opera is the same as that of the beautiful and very popular opera buffo, "Bon Soir Monsieur Pantalan."

composed by Grisar, which every Parisian knows by heart. Mr. Julius Eichberg has wedded the translation to very pleasant and appropriate music, which, without claiming any thing on the score of originality, is ingunious in its construction tion and adaptation to the sentiment of the characters and as they are familiar, and those which are the best remembered are embodied in the concerted music. The finale to the first act is a number of great merit. The opening subject is charming, and it is well developed and enforced in the instrumentation; all the following subjects are broad and free, the action never flags, and the interest is sustained throughout. The "good night" queriette is a most ingenious effective composition, the refrain, "Good night Señor Balthazar," being both beautiful and appropriate. The orchestration of this number is replete with There are many other clever and pleasing numbers in the opera, which, as a whole, we must pronounce clever in con-struction, pleasing in melodies and admirable in the spirit of is fully deserved, and we should think that it would attract crowded houses for several weeks, if the roars of laughter and warm appliance which have greeted its first performances are faithful indications of the approval of the public. Mr. Eichberg conducts his own music with much spirit, he keeps the per formers well together and up to time, but his directing is no sistinguished by either delicacy or refinement. There is scarcely any coloring throughout the work, although it offers many points for fine shading and contrasted effects. Mr. Elchberg will have to tone down his exuberance of manner and attend more closely to the refluements and details of performance before he will be acceptants to our public in the capacity of Operatic Conductor.

We must not forget to give a just meed of praise to Mr. for warrants-half the present size, and are to resume the Ketchum, who as Senor Balthazar, acted with so much spirit and point that he fully sustained the fun and drollery which seemed to rule the hour.

The English opera speculation is thus favorably launched, seemingly on a flowing tide of prosperity, and if ther unanimity of action and good faith among those concerned in the management, there is no reason why the success should not be permanent. Internal jealousy and dissensions have destroyed more promising undertakings than we could name.

We hope that this will prove an exceptional case.

The Doctor of Alcantara will be repeated to-night at the French Theater with the same excellent cast. To morrow night it will be given in Brooklyn. GREAT ORPHEONIST SINGING PESTIVAL.

Thothird and last of the festivals, under the direction of Mr. C. Jerome Hopkins, will take place at the Cooper charity children choral singing, the beautiful Boschetti. Orlandini, Mr. F. "Our Mutual Friend" will be produced at the tized the novel, constructing a four-act play, which in Harris; "Bella Wilfer," Mrs. Wood. It will thus be seen that the important characters have been skillfully distributed. Mr. Hayes has painted new scenery for the piece, and we may be sure that he has not neglected the opportunities afforded by Dickens's wonderful description of the night scenes on the banks of the Thames. In short, there is every reason to anticipate an uncommonly interesting performance at the Olympic Theater to-night, and we doubt not that the house will be crowded. The appearance of Mrs. Wood whom we did not expect to see again, will naturally be halled with pleasure. Miss Marie Glover will make her first appearance at this theater on this occasion. Mr. Albaugh, formerly of the Broadway the management of the Olympic will pass into the hands of

Mr. Glover, late of Philadelphia. Mr. Dillon has concluded his engagement at Niblo's Garden, having won in large measure those oft-mentioned "golden opinions from all sorts of people," which it is so pleasant to win and to remember. We sincerely hope to meet with Mr. Dillon again upon the New-York stage, and to witness other of his personations besides Belphegor. In this part he has shown himself to be a genuine artist; but Belphegor is not Lear. Mr. Didon will play Belphegor on Wednesday

Winter Garden. Mr. Brougham will make his first appear ance to night. The play will be "Playing With Fire," Mr. ougham's own familiar and delightful comedy, ugham himself enacting Dr. Savage. We have so fre atly described this comedy and Mr. Brougham's personanew on the subject. Those who see the play will be felighted with it-and that is the main thing. Its parts, by the way, have been cast unusually well. Mr. Burnett, an actor, of uncommon talents and oulture, as everybody knows, it to play "Uncle Timothy," the rural Romeo that Blake's genius made memorable, in the bright years that come not back. Miss Carr will be the "Widow Crabstick," and she does nothing badly. Mr. Walcot and his wife are cast as "Mr. Waverly" and "Mrs. Savage." "Pinchbeck" will be played by Mr. Andrews. "Mrs. Waverly" is to be acted by Miss Frentice, a name which is new to us. "Playing with Fire" will be performed under the conscientious and careful stage-marage of Mr. Hanley, and we may be sure that it will be preduced in a tasteful and effective manner. Mr. Brongham wil, probably, play here all Summer-so that there will be no lack of mirth for those who stay in town.

Miss Helen Western will appear to-night, at the Broadway Theater, in "The French Spy," and will also enact 'Paul," in "The Pet of the Petticoats."

The Drama.

The "comedy-drama," as the bills style it, of L'Airnle (The Grandmother) was given for the second, and we trust the last, time this season, at the French Theater on Saturday evening. Its first representation took place on the ad of March, at the Academy of Music, when the cast slightly differed from that of Saturday—M. Genty and Mile Heyler originally assuming the characters now assigned to M. Zimmer and Mme. Deligne. The acting of the latter gentleman caused us to regret the substitution, as M. Gent; was in all respects a capable and versatile comedian. This cuiticism. nowever, cannot be extended to the other members of the company, who did their utmost to interest us it what, despite many good points, must still rank among those "sensadramas whose production must make the jelicious grieve. Especially is prominence given to this class of plays to be regretted in the case of the French Theater, where no verty of sterling comedies can be pleaded in excuse. Not to refer to the classical but still popular works of Bolière there are those of Scribe-Le Bataille der Dames best among them-beside the more recent contributions of living authors, such as Le Demi Monde, Le File Naturel and a hundred others n the dramatic walk in which they easily bear off the palm sesses were conscientiously developed on Saturday evening. triumph, and at the conclusion of the fourth act, in which she is charged by her husband with the double crime of inticity and an attempt at the life of her child, she received the honor of a call before the curtain. Miles. Hinry and Solanges also fully interpreted the parts of Jeanne and Blanche, and the former, in the scenes with the would-be cynical Commundeur, performed a disagreeable task with fidelity. On Tuesday evening, we are glad to say, these painstaking artists may be seen to better advantage, in two sieces which they are admirably sdapted to illustrate-Les Do tiques Peints Par Kut Mêmes and La Femme Doit Suivre Son Mari. The former, it will be remembered, was produced at the Academy last Spring, and schieved an instantaneous and complete success. We know of nothing more exhibitating than the drinking song of Mile. Potel in the last act, given or more enjoyable than the perfect abunden with which the entire company enter into the spirit of the comedy. Let the management out adhere to the policy of giving such "studies of cotemporaneous manners" as Les Domestiques, and of leaving to merited oblivion the whole school of sensation dramas, and the success of the present brief season will be acted with much spirit. As L'Aicule herself. Mme. Bergeon

THE TRAFFIC IN LIQUOR.

Another Penceful Sabbath-German Mass Meeting this Afternoon-Grass Receipts and Number of Applications for License. Yesterday the order-loving and peaceably disposed citizens o. New-York enjoyed another peaceable Sabbath. All the bar-rooms were closed, and a glass of liquor could not be obtained in the city for love or money. At least such was the popular belief; but habitual drinkers, when it was popular belief; but habitual drinkers, when it was marted such was the case, would give a short laugh and mysteriously wink as much as to say that the properly posted could obtain liquor in any quantity. Be this as it may, every bar-room was apparently, hermetically closed, and caureh-goers with their wives and daughters were not shocked at the sight of drunken men with bloated faces and bleared eyes, haunting corner gaoceries and the stoops of grosperies.

To the regular dram-drinker—if he neglected obtaining his usual allowance on Saturday hight—yesterday was a mouroful and riksome day. On retiring to rest on Saturday night, he did so with the firm conviction he would arise early in the morning, then wend his way 10 Westenester County or Hoboken, and there imbibe to his heart's content.

In the morning, however, it ruined his feelings and his hopes were correspondingly dampened. No matter, in all probability it would clear up shortly, and then he would start for the blissful shades of Hoboken, or the sylvan groves of Morrisania. So to wile away the time he sai down and read with savage glee those Sanday papers that pitched into the new Exclee Law. Hour after hour pessed, and still there was no sign of the rain abating. A hout noon there was a partially clear sky, and in all haste he commenced to get himself ready for his expedition, but the rain fell again, and he gave up all hope of obtaining a drink, consoling himself with the reflection that it was not such a Perible thing to do without run, and that the sensation was a novel one after all.

Many were not to be deterred by the rain, so buttoning their coats closely up to their chins, they started in quest of run. These, and such as these helped to fill the drinking saloons of Hoboken, but there was not such a rush as there would have been had the day been fine. And those saloons that were nearest the ferry drove the most thriving business. Taken altogether, vesterday was as quiet a Sunday has been enjoyed in this city for many year, a fact perhaps partiall

CONTEST.

The Harvard and Active Clubs match on Saturday The Harvard and Active Clubs match on Saturday proved to beak some respects the most interesting contest of the series, the pitching of Walker, of the Actives, being found the most troublesome the Harvards have yet encountered. The fact that the first five innings of the game closed for a total score of 17 to 2 in favor of the Actives, and that but two of the Harvard players secured their bases by three hits in these innings, proved that the pitching was of the most effective kind. Indeed, up to the sixth innings the game was finely played. Afterward the Actives became demoralized somewhat in their fielding and allowed their opponents to score 13 runs to their 7, thus spoiling the effect of their play in the early part of the game.

Death of "Father Prout."

We regret the death, in Paris, on May 19, of the Rev. Francis Mahony, known throughout Great Britain and Ireland as "Father Prout," one of the most accomplished scholars, one of the wittles: and most brilliant writers, and one of the most genial men of his day. Born in Ireland about 1805, and educated in Jesuit colleges in France and the Uni. versity of Rome, Mahony was a Roman Catholic Irishman of the old school. It was not very likely that a man of his stamp would long perform clerical functions in Ireland, and he early took to literature, accepting an appointment on the staff of Fraser's Magazine upon the invitation of Dr. Maginn. A colleague of some of the brightest spirits in London, he was fully their equal in wit and humor-probably their superior in classical scholar ship. "Father Prout's" essays in Fraser were eminently popular, and were published in a collected form in 1836. In 1860 they were republished, with etchings by Maclise.

Mr. Mahony also contributed some of the earliest and best papers which appeared in Bentley's Miscellany in 1837, and subsequently travel ed for some years in Hungary, Asia Minor, Greece and Egypt. In 1847 he accepted from Mr. Dickens the post of correspondent of The Daily News in Rome, and in 1849 published his letters, which were full of ardent zeal for the Italian cause, under the title of "Facts and Figures

He was for many years-indeed, until about a month ago-Paris correspondent of The Gloke, and it is well known that to his letters that paper owes much of its attractiveness. No one could fail to recognize his style—brimful of scholarly allusions culled from all sorts of unbeard-of authors, who were familiar enough to him; witty, caustic, spiced here and there with some sly quotation from Irish ballads, and yet as to facts so cautious, so trustworthy, and so transparently honest.

Mr. Mahony had long lived in Paris, and died there in the Rue des Moulins, but occasionally he came to London, and his wit and scholarship, as well as the higher qualities of the heart, made him universally popular in the society which he

He was a vigorous and determined opponent of the Ultramentane school, with which the quendam Irish curate had very scant sympathy findeed, as Archbishop M'Hale knew, and Archbishop Cullen knows well enough. But to show how clever Irishmen can cherish an esprit de corps, and relish the fun of political and occlesiastical opponents, it has often been told-we believe with truth-how, when some solemn priest mentioned to Archbishop M'Hale the name of the ex-priest Mahony with bitter commination, the archbishop instantly checked him, and said that, after all, the Irishman who wrote "Pather Prout's" papers was an honor to his

A CIGAR MANUFACTORY ROBBED.—On the night of e 15th ult. the workshop attached to the eigar manufactory of Hyman Rosenstein, No. 34 New-Bowery, was entered by of Hyman Rosenstein, No. 34 New-Bowery, was entered by breaking the lock of the door, and robbed of 15,000 cigars, valued at $750. On Friday last Mr. R. saw some of the stolen locks of cigars in the porter-house of Daniel Bynner, No. 31 East Broadway. He at once communicated this fact to Capt. Thorn of the Fourth Precinct, and that officer detailed Officers Mullen and Horbit to work up the case. Bynner's place was searched, and ten more boxes of cigars found, which were identified by Mr. Rosenstein as a portion of those stolen from him. In addition, six empty boxes were found. Bynner was then arrested on a charge of having committed the barglary, and on Saturday Justice Horan held him to ball to await an examination. He claims to know nothing whatever about the affair.

A PAWNEROKER'S ESTABLISHMENT ENTERED AND ROBBED BY BURGLARS.—Some time on Saturday night or Sunday morning a party of burglars entered the hallway of No. 410 Ninth-ave., which the police state is always open, ascended to the roof, and passing to No. 409, occupied as a ascended to the roof, and passing to No. 408, occupied as a the scutile and descended into the building, and helped themselves to whatever was lying around loose. This comprised $300 in fractional currency and pennies, and a quantity of male made by them, but it resisted their efforts. The thieves left behind them two heavy jimmies, some ohisels, a dark lantern, and other implements used by burglars in their work. On the roof of the bouse was found a current bag containing $75 in the same manner as they entered. No clue to the thieves has

The chairs were shown him, but he did not seem satisfied and asked to be snown others. Believing that his objoot was to detain her there in order to give his companion a chance to rob the store, Mrs. S. hastened up stairs, and found that the money drawer, which she had left locked, had been forced, and the contents amounting to $55, stolen. Baker was standing in the doorway at the time she made the discovery, but on hur advancing toward him, he ran away. She then selzed Leddy and gave him in charge of officer Abbott of the Eleventh Precinct. The prisoner was subsequently taken before Justice Shandley at the Essex Market Police Court, and committed for trial in default of $500 sail. CONEY ISLAND POINT .- A rumor was current on Saturday that the Board of Health contemplates the seizure of Coney Island Point with the view of establishing hospitals for Coney Island Point with the view of establishing hospitals for the accommodation of choiera patients. The report caused great excitement among the residents of Gravesend and other towns and threats were made that they would forcibly resist the erection of builings for such purposes. Mr. Hendrickson, the owner of the land, was summond before the Board of Henith some time since and, it appears, was notified by the President that his place would be taken peaceably, if possible, hast by face if need be.
